

Excerpt from Market Trending, January 24, 2007

<http://markettrending.blogspot.com/2007/01/addressing-our-state-of-energy.html>

ADDRESSING OUR STATE OF ENERGY

....

The market will tend to treat such companies as Evergreen Solar (ESLR), Suntech Power (STP), Pacific Ethanol (PEIX), VeraSun (VSE), Aventine (AVN), and not to mention the fuel cell companies, as risky. If one is inclined to invest in this area, a better choice may be PowerShares Wilderhill Clean Energy ETF (PBW). These stocks will rise and fall on rhetoric. Large corporations such as General Electric(GE) or Archer Daniels Midland (ADM) are steady growers with a stake in alternative energy, but little will be added to the bottom line.